Strategies to expedite drug development and market access

10:45am - 11:30am
Panel Discussions

Cyril Magnin III

In today's age of global drug development and commercialization, new business models need to be created to meet the growing demands of companies. The opportunities for clinical development and market expansion in China are fueling tremendous growth. One example is to take advantage of new regulatory guidelines; Western companies can now use clinical data obtained overseas for new submissions, while companies in China can leverage the shorter IND time frames in the US. Industry leaders will share their strategies to maximize opportunities for success.
